

Student, Early Career, and Future Leader Inaugural IPAC Consortium

1:00 – 5:00 PM / Workshop Day
Sunday, July 14, 2019 / Cost: Free

Register @ www.ipacweb.org/event-3323130/Registration

Questions? Email Ketaki Sodhi @ ks225@zips.uakron.edu or Ryan Thibodeau @ rkt15@zips.uakron.edu

What is it?

This consortium will provide those new to the field with information on careers in assessment, especially related to public sector issues, and on IPAC as an organization. It will also:

- Allow students and early career professionals to meet and network with other like-minded individuals.
- Provide information and answer questions regarding some of the unique features of working in assessment.
- Discuss unique career opportunities available in assessment.
- Provide information on IPAC as an organization.
- Intended audience is primarily graduate students in related programs, but also advanced undergraduate students and early career professionals.

Workshop Structure

1. Introductions, Ice Breaker, Meet and Greet
2. Talk on the History and Basics of Public Sector Assessment and Merit-Based Testing
3. Networking
4. Panel on Careers in Personnel Assessment
5. Panel on IPAC, Becoming Involved in IPAC

Who is IPAC?

Since 2009 operating as an independent, nonprofit organization, IPAC (then known as IPMAAC) was initially established in 1976 as part of the International Public Management Association for Human Resources (IPMA-HR). Members include HR directors and managers, attorneys, academic faculty and students, and specialists in staffing, recruiting, and organizational performance management. Members come from the private sector, nonprofits, and the public sector—from local to federal government.

The 2019 IPAC Conference

This year's conference, Max Assessments in Minneapolis, will be held July 14-17 in Minneapolis, MN. On Sunday July 14, before the conference gets underway, IPAC will host hands-on workshops on a diverse selection of topics—including this one.

